FUNERAL CEREMONIES - WEDDINGS AT ST. PAUL'S CHURCH-MORTUARY STATISTICS-SUCCESS OF THE CATHOLIC FAIR-NARROW ESCAPE OF A YOUNG LADY, &C. [Correspondence of the Richmond Dispatch,]

DECEMBER 1, 1877. The funeral of the late Major William H Jarvis takes place to-morrow afternoon at 3 o'clock, from Grace church, in this city. His body will reach this city to-night, and will be placed in the Assembly Hall- of Monroe Lodge, No. 8, I. O. O. F., of which he had for many years been a member. To-morrow afternoon at 3 o'clock the remains will be taken to Blandford cemetery for interment, and will be buried with the imposing ceremonies of the Masonic and Odd-Fellows orders. The Fire Department, of which he was for many years the chief engineer, will also form a part of the escort to the grave, carrying with them one of the steam-engines draped in mourning. Major Jarvis organized a company in this city at the beginning of the war and served for some time in the field. He also commanded a company of reserves in the memorable action of the 9th of June, 1864, in front of Petersburg.

The authorities of St. Paul's church have determined that hereafter all weddings taking place in that church will be regarded as strictly private. No one will be admitted to the building on such occasions except on cards of invitation presented at the door. This order is to be rigidly en-It is not intended to deny the use of the church for such services to the poor, however, for in their case cards of invitation will be furnished without charge by the rector. The object is to prevent the confusion incident to the large and promiscuous crowds assembled on such occasions. Rev. H. A. Tupper, of Richmond, will occupy the pulpit of the First Baptist church to-morrow (Sunday) morning and

PRINCE EDWARD COUNTY DEER-HUNTING IN BUCKINGHAM-TURKEYS AND PARTRIDGES-THE CAME LAW-WHAT? Correspondence of the Richmond Dispatch.

PROSPECT, Va., November 27, 1877. Some of our neighbors over the Appomattex river, in Buckingham county, have had good tuck of tate in deer-hunting. On election-day two were killed, and since that time Messrs. M. C. Eleau, Jack Hooper, George Cox, and William Stanley have laid low five more in the neighborhood of New Store. This party have also killed forty wild turkeys this fall. One of the bucks killed was so heavy that it took four ablebodied men to lift it. The hide measured seven feet in length. It is stated that in those portions of Buckingham where there are large bodies of forest many deer abound, while the undergrowth and uncropped grass of large uncultivated farms present inviting fields to this species of wild game. Wild turkeys have also increased in number, and smaller game, such as pheasants, partridges, &c., have multiplied exceedingly. In this whole section of country, when the time has expired by law forbidding persons to shoot turkeys and partridges under penalty, there was on the very next day, early in the morning, a general turn-out of the hunters, and sad havoe was made upon the unsuspecting feathered tribe. It was like picket-firing all over the county. For the information of many of the readers of the Dispatch please publish that portion of the game-law that relates to cooping of partridges or netting them. A lawyer of distinction was heard to say a few days ago that every man bad a right to catch or kill birds on his own plantation. If this be the law, the law is of

The Meteor on the Border.

BRISTOL, TENN., November 23, 1877. Editors Dispatch: The meteor was seen by your correspondent here on Tuesday evening last at 4:45, Washington time, on a line a few degrees north of east. Its head seemed about eight inches diameter, while light around its front, deeper red near the centre of its nucleus-a short trail, which soon disappeared. It did not explode above our horizon, but moved in nearly a straight line, making an angle of about forty-live degrees with our horizon. It did not move zigzag. It was beantiful. It was witnessed by many.

END OF THE SENATORIAL STRUGGLE-A COM-PROMISE-EUSTIS TO BE SEATED-GOODE'S AMNESTY BILL DEFEATED, &C.

[From Our Regular Correspondent.] Washington, December 1 .- The great truggle over the contested-election cases is over at last. It has ended in a compromise which has seated Butler and Kellogg and will seat Eustis. To the casual observer in the gallery the debates of the past week have seemed important. To the old habitue persons who may purchase said patents they have seemed almost foolish, because sions, and sustain the good teachers of this they have been utterly without effect, so far as the arguments in them were concerned. Every senator's mind was made up before the contest was a day old, and the only question has been one of votes. It took a week for each side to concomplete victory. That narrows the choice to a prolongation of the fight until 1879 or a compromise, and at a late hour last night to vote on the cases of both Butler and defeated for want of the necessary two-Kellogg before either was sworn in. The thirds majority. balloting took but little time.

> KELLOGG WAS FIRST DECLARED ENTITLED TO by a vote of thirty to twenty-eight; Davis, of Illinois, voting against him and Patterson and Conover for him. Stanley Matthews voted steadily with the Republicans.

> The only change in the vote on the Butler-Corbin case was that Judge Davis, although present, declined to vote. So Butler was seated by a vote of twenty-nine to twenty-

> As soon as the two new senators had been sworn in an adjournment was had until 2 o'clock to-day.

It was a part of the agreement that the Senate should adjourn until this afternoon in order to give the Committee on Privileges and Elections an opportunity to prepare a report on the Eustis case. Shortly fore sunset. after the Senate assembled to-day a report on that case was made, and, to the surprise of all who were not initiated, the report was in favor of Mr. Eustis. Action so materially that it is doubtful if it is passed before the regular session. Congressman Goode came very near securing the adoption of a general amnesty resolution to the effect that a general amnesty be granted to all upon whom political disabilities are imposed by the fourteenth that amnesty must be asked for before it was granted, and Goode accepted the amendment, and asked unanimous consent that the German Telegraphic Department to have it passed under a suspension of the rules. Baker demanded the yeas and nays. This was just what was not wanted, as most of the Republicans, while favoring A GENERAL AMNESTY nay vote. Randall suggested that Goode withdraw his resolution to get rid of the call for the yeas and nays, and offer it again under the impression that a viva-voce vote would be allowed; but the year and nays were again demanded, and the resolution failed of the requisite two thirds to suspend the rules, although it received a majority of the votes cast.

Just at the close of the session of the House, Mills, of Texas, offered a resolution instructing the Committee on Ways and Means to report a tariff bill for revenue only, and not a bill which should rob the many to protect the few. This Wood, of New York, strenuously objected, and tried to proclaim the hierarchy of Scotland imto cut off by a motion for a recess until mediately. Monday, and by a call of the House on the NO SERIOUS DIFFICULTY BETWEEN TURKEY ground that there was no quorum. The call was had, and then Mills's resolution was adopted-76 to 66; after which the at 10 o'clock.
